3. OFCY Director's Update

Sandy Taylor spoke about the projected budget for the 2017-2018 grant year and described the City's fiscal process that allocates OFCY funds for grantee payments. City-wide initiatives around bettering the Oakland community and addressing issues that affect children and youth were discussed. The strategic planning process for OFCY is informed by the ideology and public impact of these initiatives. To this end, two new strategic planning consultants for 2017-2018, Social Policy Research Associates (SPR) and Communities in Action, were contracted for assistance on solidifying the 2019-2022 Strategic Plan. The POC was described as a pivotal resource for the OFCY program especially in regards to legislation for funding allocation for grantees and the direction of the strategic planning process. In the future, an ad-hoc sub-committee of POC members will be formed specifically to guide the process.
